

A Message from PIRC

“What is going to happen?” Since November 8th, we have spoken to many in the community about their concerns. How will immigrants be treated under a Trump presidency? How will things change?

While there is great amount of uncertainty about immigration, PIRC’ mission remains unchanged - advocate for immigrants to have equal access to their rights under law. PIRC is a nonprofit organization that does not take a political position. We work within existing laws to ensure that immigrants have equal access to U.S. laws through legal education, advocacy, and direct legal assistance.

In the coming months, PIRC will continue each day to protect the rights of immigrants in the community and the rights of those facing deportation. We will monitor the new Administration for changes in policy, and share this information and updates at our website www.pirclaw.org . And we will continue to give voice to the most vulnerable.

We believe, as Dr. Martin Luther King expressed in a 1965 speech, that “The arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends towards justice.”

In peace,

Mary Studzinski

Executive Director
